RESEARCH PROJECTS IN PROGRESS

Lam, H., & Furr, R. M. (in preparation for Master's thesis). How accurately can people predict behaviors? Large language models outperform undergraduates in behavioral predictions.

- Across two studies, LLMs predicted how the typical person behaves across situations more accurately than undergraduates on all six accuracy metrics, with large effect sizes
- The master's thesis extends the sample to compare the accuracy of psychologists (as experts in human behavior) with LLMs (data collection in progress)

Lam, H., Prinzing, M., & Ratchford, J. L. (ongoing). Designing a large language model that increases intellectual virtues in users.

- Led literature review and drafted LLM prompts for meetings
- Funded by Wake Forest University's AI and Humanity Pilot Research Grant ($17,625)

Lam, H., & Furr, R. M. (ongoing; data collection complete). The effects of AI emotional support on stress and future support preferences.

- Designed an experiment in which participants discussed a personal stressor with an AI chatbot (vs. a control condition), measuring pre–post stress, perceived AI capability for emotional support, and preferences for human versus AI support for future stressors
- Collected data from 150 participants through SONA using a Qualtrics-embedded chatbot interface

RESEARCH LAB EXPERIENCE

Pluralism Research Team, Wake Forest University 2025–present

Dr. Eranda Jayawickreme & Dr. R. Michael Furr; funded by the Templeton Religion Trust

- Used qualitative analysis to summarize an interdisciplinary scholars' conference into psychologically relevant components of pluralism; first-authored the resulting paper

- Co-authored a book chapter (under review) and a theory paper on relational pluralism (in preparation)

Social-Personality Psychology Lab, Baylor University 2023–2025
Dr. Wade C. Rowatt (Chair, Professor)

- Ran participants for an in-person study at Baylor's Black Gospel Music Archive (~3 hours/week)
- Participated in weekly lab meetings on ongoing social-personality research projects

Economics Research Assistant, Baylor University 2023–2024
Dr. James E. West (NBER, W.H. Smith Professor)

- Compiled public data on when colleges and universities established DEI leadership positions (e.g., chief diversity officers), for a project about whether these positions increase student and faculty diversity

WORK EXPERIENCE

Teaching Assistant, Wake Forest University 2025–present
Department of Psychology

- Graded assignments for Psychology of Negotiations (PSY 279A), Intro to Neuroscience (NEU 200), and Psychopharmacology (PSY 222)
- Supported Dr. Will Fleeson, Associate Provost for AI, in gathering details on AI-related expertise across Wake Forest by contacting faculty, to identify institutional strengths for a university-wide AI initiative

Academic Tutor, Baylor University 2023–2025
Center for Academic Success and Engagement

- Tutored undergraduate students in Pre-Calculus, Calculus, Statistics, Economics, Music Theory, and Introduction to Psychology courses
